

TOP CAUSES OF...

This graph shows the causes of fatal teen accidents that were recorded in a certain year within the country. The highest being speeding. Of course, this could have been assumed because the stereotype that the younger the driver is, the faster they like to go. Right of Way can also be understandable considering that it is sometimes confusing to gage. And turns can also be very tricky, especially with all factors included such as blind spots and possibly assuming that there is a middle lane to turn into. Yet, all of this data could be, in a sense, bias. Maybe because it was recorded where there are more illogical turn setups, or not so visible speed signs. Anything can look the way you want it to, you just have to put it the way you feel best fit.

<https://crashstats.nhtsa.dot.gov/Api/Public/ViewPublication/812667>